

RTL B Clusters for 2012

The RTL B Transformation Programme intends to improve the impact of the service, by amalgamating clusters and introducing a cluster manager and practice leaders to achieve better management and professional leadership. The management roles can occur with aggregation of cluster resources and through amalgamating clusters.

The new set up will mean that RTL B get more and better opportunities within the cluster to share best practice and be supported by strong leadership and management to grow professionally and strongly impact the learning and achievement of the children in their cluster.

Larger clusters do not mean fewer liaisons with schools. RTL B: practice leaders will be part of a team that will assist with local coordination and liaison to ensure effective delivery of RTL B service. Under the new structure, clusters could elect to operate a geographically based team if they identify this as a sensible organisational structure through needs analysis of students in the cluster.

This realignment of previous RTL B boundaries will be challenging. It will require Boards, principals and RTL B to adapt and form new relationships and connections. Much of the success of this change lies in the strength of those new relationships and their common, single-minded focus on providing excellent quality services for students and schools. Schools and students will continue to receive support through the RTL B service – and it will be much improved over time. Schools and families will see stronger governance of the service, better targeting and more equitable funding and use of resources.
